Jamaica Day 2017– St. Elizabeth Basic School

by Fr. Richard Award

This is a little history on Jamaican Day in schools island-wide. Schools across the island will join in the national observation of Jamaica Day on Friday, February 24, under the theme: ‘Celebrating Jamaica: Exploring Our Legacy in a Global Context’.

Senior Education Officer in the Ministry of Education, Youth and Information, Marlon Williams, who launched Jamaica Day at a recent ceremony at the Herbert Morrison Technical High School in Montego Bay, St. James, said the mission of the day’s observation is to encourage an appreciation for the nation’s cultural heritage, especially among students. “Jamaica Day is an annual event designed to contribute to citizenship education and to enhance the appreciation for Jamaica’s rich heritage and culture which builds positive identity in our students and, by extension, our nation,” he explained

The national Jamaica Day observation ceremony will take place at the Green Island High School in Hanover

Mr. Williams said students and teachers as well as members of the society are expected to wear the national colors on that day, while schools are expected to be decorated accordingly. Jamaica Day, which is part of the Culture in Education Program, was instituted in the nation’s schools by the Ministry of Education in an effort to celebrate what is called ‘Jamaican-ness’ and the country’s contribution to the world.
